Gunja and pregnancy

Information on gunja for Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander Australians
Gunja goes from the mother to the baby inside her. Gunja can make babies too small or be born too soon.
Gunja gets into breast milk and is no good for feeding. Gunja is no good for the baby’s lungs and breathing.
Gunja is no good for baby’s sleeping. When baby gets older, gunja is no good for learning or memory.
Women who are pregnant should quit gunja. They can get help from a doctor (GP), midwife, clinic, rehab centre, hospital, Aboriginal Medical Service or alcohol and other drug centre.
This booklet is part of a series that provides information about gunja (cannabis) in an easy-to-read format. You can order all the titles and associated posters at no charge from our website.
